Network Impact supports individuals and institutions with research and tools to build networks for social impact.

Over the last decade, Network Impact has contributed to the design and evaluation of a wide range of network initiatives in the U.S., including network organizing to support policies that benefit rural people and places, regional collaborations to end homelessness, and place-based efforts to increase civic engagement.

The Center for Survey Research (CSR) is a full-scale academic survey research center that conducts basic and applied research contributing to knowledge and understanding of important social issues.

CSR maintains a professional interviewing staff, computer assisted telephone facilities and survey sampling capacity, as well as the ability to conduct mail- and web-based surveys. Since 1971, CSR has provided methodological expertise to a range of university scholars and public and private agencies.
In 2012...

Incourage partnered with Edge Research to conduct its first Community Survey. The survey gathered information about residents’ hopes and concerns and their priorities for the south Wood County community.

In November 2017...

Incourage conducted a follow-up survey to understand how residents’ goals and perspectives have changed.

Questions on the surveys explore...

- Residents’ overall satisfaction with south Wood County area
- Strengths of the community as well as most important problems facing the community
- Key words or phrases that residents use to describe their community
- How well different organizations are doing in addressing community challenges
- Residents’ priorities for the future
- Resident participation in civic activities
- Respondent demographic characteristics – age, education, zip code, time living in area, income
This presentation offers a summary of 2017 survey results while also comparing 2017 and 2012 results, where applicable.

Note: Throughout the presentation orange depicts 2012 survey results and purple depicts 2017 CSR results.
2017 Survey Process

FALL 2017
